

FELLERT™

Facts

Architect: Celano Design Studios
Client: Centurion Restaurant Group
Location: Miami, USA
Area tot: 500 m² / 5 400 ft²
Area Fellert: 140 m² / 1 500 ft²
Product: Even Better Scallop
Fellert Installer: Delta Construction, LLC
Type of project: New construction

Designing with ceilings

This is a Peruvian restaurant that takes you to a place where you feel good, relaxed, a little loose and ready to have a good time – of course we wanted to join in! – that place is called “between Pisco and Nazca”.

The restaurant founders and New York based architecture and interior design firm Celano Design Studios had a clearly defined concept and it was to be carried through all the way, including the designed ceilings by Fellert. Needless to say, we’re grateful for it as it allowed us to show exactly how awesome and enriching a ceiling can be.

This particular one is a scalloped patterned, two-colored piece in teal and white. It brings the ocean into the room while paying tribute to ancient Latin American architectural elements. It’s working the space with the other sculptural maritime components and geometrical features from Peruvian culture. You’re surrounded by a soft, yet crispy elegant blend of materials and colors. A playful variety of tiles, wood, plaster and fabrics – the color scheme ties everything together. It’s fresh with a hint of orange heat. Just like the ceviches. This is a gastrobar that’s easygoing, fashionable, fun and just as loud as it should be.

PHOTO: RA-HAUS/ELIZABETH RENFROW

Project summary:

- High esthetic requirements
- Precision craftsmanship in color, form and finish
- The use of acute lighting

Pisco y Nazca

Miami[US]

Links: Gastrobar Pisco y Nazca

CULTURE: RESTAURANTS, LOUNGES & CLUBS